

BLOODLINE POWERS

RED FURY

The Vampire enters battle with a savage and unstoppable bloodlust.

The Vampire has +1 Attack (this does not count toward his Maximum).

BLADE MASTER

Superbly trained by some of the best swordsmen throughout history the Vampire can easily turn aside the blows of his enemies.

The Vampire can parry attacks as though they were carrying a weapon with the Parry Trait (see page 118). If they already have one or more weapons with this Trait, they can parry one additional attack. (This skill is cumulative with Parry Skill)

HEARTH PIERCING

Using a combination of strength and speed the Vampire can easily find a gap in his opponent's defences.

The Vampire may re-roll missed attacks when charging.

STRENGTH OF STEEL

Such is the Vampire's martial prowess that he is able to strike at the precise moment when it will cause most damage.

The Vampire has +1 Strength (this does not count toward his maximum) in the turn he charges.

TRANFIRING GLARE

The Vampire is able to hypnotise a victim using his glowing red eyes, the victim will remain passive and wait for the Vampire to close.

The Glare may be used on any living model in base contact that is not Immune to Psychology. The victim must pass a Leadership test on 2D6 or be transfixed. A transfixed model may not attack in close combat and is treated as being pinned for purpose of being attacked. Roll for the Glare at the start of the combat sequence

FLIYNG HORROR

The Vampire is able to take to the skies with great, membranous wings, or perhaps can even metamorphose into a monstrous bat.

Count the movement of this model as 10" and this model can ignore all terrain, may move freely between levels without restriction. They may not however move through impassable terrain or walls.

Heroes

0-1 Vampire Thrall

COST TO HIRE: 120 Gold Crowns.

Taken into the fold due to their promise with the dark arts, Thralls serve their masters with undying devotion. While lesser Vampires, they still possess great speed and strength, and the ability to possibly overthrow the shadow of their undead lords.
